After having lived in Stoneham for about 7 years, I can confidently say that I have immersed myself in my community, and with my 2 younger brothers and parents here as well, I plan to stay connected to my community in the future as well. I have been apart of Stoneham's youth soccer teams and even went on to referee after leaving the sport. I see myself continuing to work up in helping my town, and connecting with my community even further as I grow older and more mature. Having been apart of volunteer programs for the Community Hall and the local Congretional Chruch, I can continue to find ways to intermittently volunteering and helping around my town when I get the chance, even during college while on break. I can also assist my community via local business. Our family hasn't been much for travellers, so we take part in a lot of town activites, including grabbing dessert at The Daily Scoop, or playing with my brothers at the Middleschool playground, or visiting the local farmer's market during the appropriate season. Even though I've only lived in Stoneham since 5th grade, I've come to love and feel at home amongst the shops, hang-out areas, and people. (Aaron has the best Taco's in town 100% in case you were wondering). Needless to say, I do love my town and have loved being in it for the past few years, and have that same mindset moving forward. I don't plan on starting any new businesses in the near future, but am open to possibilities later in my life. For now, I'll stick to helping out around my mother's local company and volunteering where I can. The best I can do for the town is probably to focus on the younger generations. Having babysat and having two brothers of my own, I'm quite good at handling children and am somewhat passionate about it. I can easily see myself helping with after-school activities or summer programs for Stoneham youths, just the activities that I participated in when I was their age.
